Preface.

Those who are in the habit of turning over the leaves of Kemble's 'Codex Diplomaticus,' Dugdale's 'Monasticon Anglicanum,' and similar works, during their researches into the early monastic history and literature of England, cannot fail to lament the want of indexes for names of persons, which have been omitted in every work. It occurred to me therefore in the first instance to compile for my own use a comprehensive list of the Heads of Religious Houses in England and Wales during the Saxon period, intending at some future opportunity to prepare similar lists of the other dignitaries who occupy a place in these books. I found this when completed so useful, that in the hope of others who are engaged in kindred pursuits deriving some benefit from it, I here present it with a preliminary chronological list of nearly three hundred Religious Houses established in England and Wales previous to the Norman Conquest, at the same time interpolating among the names additional references to other sources, printed and manuscript, which contain notices of such individuals as come within the scope of my task, and have great pleasure in laying the result before the Council of the Royal Society of Literature.

The list as it now stands forms a complete index to the ten valuable works mentioned in the subjoined List of Authorities at pages 14, 15, as far as concerns heads of monasteries,—presenting at one view the name (with orthographical variants), the title, the house presided over, the date and reference of every personage of the class and period above mentioned. A curious instance of the use of this list will be found in the note at page 28. The total number of separate entries amounts to several thousands.

It would have been superfluous for me to add a secondary series of references. Those I have given are in almost every case the only ones which point directly to original sources, and consequently the only available ones for the plan I proposed to myself. It will be noticed that I appear to have occasionally deviated more or less from strict alphabetical sequence; but this has been unavoidable, as I wished, by a particular but simple method of grouping similar names, to indicate the possibility, but by no means to assert the positive fact, of their relation to identical personages. It is well known that great allowances must be made for dialectic variation and the caprices of authors and scribes at such an unsettled period. The great number of later copies of such early documents as those contained in the works tabulated, exhibit numerous variations in the orthography of proper names; and to have introduced these in every case would have swelled the size of the present work far beyond reasonable limits, while no corresponding advantage would have been gained. As it is, in the orthography of even contemporary documents a very wide diversity will be found to exist; for instance, on pages 22–25, upwards of fifteen variants of the true Saxon forms Ælfsige or Æðelsige present themselves. It would have been impossible to bring before the eye the fact that Dugdale's Egelsine, abbot of St. Augustine's, Canterbury, was identical with Æðelsige of the 'Anglo-Saxon Chronicle,' if I had tied myself down to strict adherence to the alphabetical system, as these names would have appeared in different portions of the List.

As an instance of the occurrence of numerous forms representing the name of one personage, the reader may select the names of an abbot of Newminster, who occupied the dignity from 1034 to 1057. They are given in the 'Liber de Hyda,' lately published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, as follows:—Elfwin or Elfwy, Alwy, Ælfwin, Ælfwig, Alwin, Alwinus. I am, on the other hand, quite prepared to admit, nay rather to state, for example, that Ælfsi, abbot of Medeshamstede in 992, was never known by the standard form of his name, Æðelsige; but the variant forms which occur in the vicinity of this name on page 22 may refer to him, and this possibility I leave to others to determine. My object then is attained in laying before the student of Monastic Chronology an alphabetical series of names, of which certain groups are, however, subject to a subordinate chronological arrangement when by their evident similarity, they can be referred to a standard form occurring more or less frequently. For a large proportion of such names probably indicate the same individual personage. By this method, too, one is enabled to trace the gradual transition and elimination of single letters and final syllables.

In conclusion, I will venture to hope that the errors unavoidable in the preparation of such a work for the first time, and without a pioneer, will not be found so numerous as to mar its usefulness; and I shall thankfully receive any suggestions for improvement or alteration.

Ælfwinus[1]	abba		ob. viii. Kal. Dec. 1057.	MS. Cott. Titus D. xxvii. f 8 b. 18 b.	Saxon calendar.

[1] "Ælfwinus vitam liquit hic abba cad." [? caducam.]

The identification of abbot Ælfnoðus, whose obit on the fifth of the ides of December is also metrically entered thus—

"Hic requievit abbas Ælfnoðus honeste"— and of this abbot Ælfwinus, would enable us to assign this venerable volume, containing one of the earliest English calendars we possess, to the monastery in which it was prepared. The portion containing the calendar has been printed by R. T. Hampson, in his 'Medii Ævi Kalendarium,' London [1847], vol. i. pp. 435, et seqq. Under the Ides of March the following notice occurs, in a handwriting corresponding with that of most of the obits:—

"Obitus Æthelnothi . pat[ris] Ælfwini . mo[nachi] . abb[atis]."

Under the seventh of the Kalends of December:—

"Hic obiit wulfwynn mat[er] Ælfwini . abb[atis]."

Upon the third of the Kalends of April:—

"Hic obiit leofgyfu soror Æ[lfwini] . abb[atis]."

On the seventh of the Ides of May:—

"Hic obiit Gode . so[ror] . Æ[lfwini]."

On the fifth of the Kalends of November:—

"Hic obiit Ælfwynn . so[ror] . Æ[lfwini] . mo[nachi] . et abb[atis]."

And lastly on the sixth of the Kalends of January:—

"Obitus Ælfnothi . fr[atris]. Æ[lfwini]."

The words in italics have been added to the four preceding entries in a hand differing considerably from that in which the other portions are written.

These sentences show that the calendar, which bears the handwriting of three or more persons, was in course of compilation during the lifetime, or, to speak more accurately, before and during the abbacy of Ælfwinus, whose father, mother, brother, and two sisters, if not actual inmates of the monastery, or benefactors to it, were at least honoured with periodical remembrance in the prayers of the monks; we may indeed go farther, and, without exceeding the bounds of probability, consider the book to have been the property of Abbot Ælfwinus himself, who has entered with his own hand at different periods the death of five members of his family, and indirectly indicated his ewn promotion from monk to abbot.

It is difficult to determine accurately the date of the composition of the calendar; the obit of King Cnud, i.e. Canute, occurs under the second of the Ides of November, —this event took place A.D. 1036; and the obit of King Harthacnud, i.e. Hardicanute is placed under the sixth of the Ides of June,—this event happened A.D. 1041. By taking this and other similar notices into consideration it will not be far from right to attribute it to the concluding years of the Saxon dynasty.

The next and last step that remains is to find an abbot of the name of Ælfwinus during the period above indicated, and here the utility of the list I have prepared becomes evident. It will be seen that the following names occur among the group, —Bath, Newminster, Ramsey, "Bucfæsten," Malmesbury, and Great Malvern, and if this were all the evidence we could bring to bear upon the question, it would yet be doubtful to which of these monasteries we are to give the preference. Ælfwine however, occurs in a charter of undoubted genuineness (K. 949) ranging in date between A.D. 1049 and 1052, as abbot of Newminster, and so strong is the collateral proof afforded by obituary entries of no less than four other heads of Religious Houses (out of a total of eight,—three of whom, Heahfleda, Wulfthrytha, and Berhtinus, are not identified; one, Osgarus, being probably abbot of Abingdon) whose names also appear on the Newminster list, viz. Byrhtwoldus, A.D. 995–1008 [D]; Æthelnothus and Ælfnothus, A.D. 1021 and 1057 [D]; and Ælfsinus, A.D. 997 [K], that I think there is very little doubt left, if any, that the volume under inspection originated at Newminster, and we may presume that Heahfleda and Wulfthrytha were two abbesses of the neighbouring nunnery of St. Mary at Winchester.

On the fifth of the Kalends of January we have the following:—

"Obitus . . . fr[atr]is n[ost]ri Ælfgari presidis," and this affords yet further proof of the connection of the book with Newminster, for Ælfgar was, according to Dugdale and the old chronicles, the first abbot of this monastery, being sent thither from Abingdon,—a fact which satisfactorily explains the obituary mention of Abbot Osgarus already noticed.

a The charter (a copy of an older original) is torn at the commencement of this word, of which all that now remains is apparently . . . ont'. I am inclined to think the word in the original charter was "Ceort'," for Chertsey, and the Saxon r mistaken by the transcriber for an n, from its similarity to that letter. The next name in my list undoubtedly refers to Chertsey Abbey, whose roll of abbots is very defective, and this is a new name for insertion among the few yet known. Kemble supplies the initial F, but no monastery of the name is known to have existed before the conquest.
